DENVER, March 22.—Denver streets and alleys may be paved with high-grade gold ore, it developed recently. Many of the streets are paved with smelter slag. This slag was assayed recently and showed values running up to $1,100 a ton in gold and silver. City officials are investigating to determine whether such assays indicate general or isolated values. If the former it is possible that the next CWA project here will be the prospecting of Denver streets.